

Seminar Series: Winter to Spring 2009

Would you like to hear about how results from locally conducted research apply to practice and to improving patient care?

If so, you might be interested in some presentations taking part at the Trust during the first part of 2009.

The Multi-professional Evidence-based practice and Research Group (MERG) would like to invite you to listen to the following presenters. They all work at the School of Nursing, Midwifery and Social Work (University of Manchester) and have been selected to discuss their research and its relevance to practitioners and the care of patients:

- 7th January – Catherine Walshe – ‘Feel your way and find your feet!’ Using case study in palliative care
- 4th February – Maria Horne - Exercise for falls prevention in Caucasian and South Asian older adults: Are focus groups a useful data collection tool?
- 4th March – Caroline Carlisle - How can we evaluate our learning and skills training?
- 1st April – Linda McGowan – ‘One embryo or two?’ A study of couples undergoing IVF treatment

All presentations will take place between 2.30-3.30pm, on the first Wednesday in the month, in lecture theatre 2 (ERC).

Presentations are open to all staff and students at the Trust. No need to book a place - please just turn up.
